During the articling year, each student is assigned to a small group of lawyers who act as "principals." Emphasis is placed on providing each student with principals who practice in the area(s) of law the student is most interested in along with a principal or two in different fields so as to allow for a diverse and varied learning experience. This allows articling students the opportunity to maintain continuity with files and their mentors, while also fostering a collegial atmosphere among students.

We are excited for our articling students' year ahead!
